Giant Brown Bear!

If you are dreaming of a giant Alaska brown bear, then welcome to the club; I have dreamed of the great bears from the days of my youth! Now I find myself in the blessed position of being able to help others in their quest of fulfilling such dreams. Whether you desire to hunt the giants of the world famous Alaska Peninsula, or the salmon fed bears of the western Alaska Range or the Cook Inlet country, we have a hunt opportunity that will suit your needs.

Cy Rossi with his trophy 10' 10" 2006 Alaska Peninsula Brown Bear

We provide hunts on the Alaska Peninsula (which is managed for trophy brown bear) during the spring of even-numbered years, and we hunt the western Alaska Range in GMU 19 as well as GMU 16 when the Peninsula season is not open.

Hunting techniques vary with the region and season, with hunts being conducted both on the river bottoms and berry covered slopes. Spring hunts on the Peninsula are typically on bare ground with little need for snowshoes, and our late May hunts in GMU 16 B are similar, with the bears already out of the den and looking for food. Fall hunts in all units are focused on the salmon streams and the berry slopes while they hold the bear's attention. Good numbers of bears inhabit both areas and it is no secret that the Peninsula presents opportunities for the larger bear on average.

HARDCORE SHEEP HUNTS!

Sheep hunting has defined this outfit in the past, and we are intent on keeping our reputation in good standing in this regard. We have averaged 37.5" on horn length and 14" bases in the past in the famed Chugach
